

I think this is unfair to those who want their privacy. Most if not all buiness bombard us daily with advertising on radio, tv, and newspapers. If a person does not want their product after all this, then I am sure buisness feel that a phone call will pressure a person to say yes just to get rid of them. This I feel is another way buisness get's their way with the government because they pay for the politicians campaign.

I would like to know why buisness can call with blocked id's. Make them provide the name of the company and the phone numbers when calling. Maybe I would like to call them on a regular base.

My final word in this matter is that "The people have spoke. We do not want their phone calls. If I want their product, I will go and get it."
